LONG BIO

Jo Miller

CEO of Women's Leadership Coaching, Inc., Jo Miller is the creator of the Women's Leadership Coaching® system. Used successfully by thousands of emerging women leaders worldwide, the system identifies the key steps women must take to advance into positions of leadership and influence.

Jo created the Women's Leadership Coaching® system after interviewing more than 1,000 women and recognizing a common set of challenges encountered by women wanting to advance their careers—especially in industries long considered “a man's world,” such as technology, finance, and energy. Taught through Women's Leadership Coaching workshops, webinars, and coaching programs, the Women's Leadership Coaching® system covers specific strategic and tactical skills needed to break through those roadblocks and move ahead.

A leading authority on women's leadership, Jo is sought-after and engaging speaker, delivering more than 60 speaking presentations annually to audiences of up to 1,200 women. She has traveled widely in Europe, North America, Asia Pacific, and the Middle East to deliver keynotes and teach workshops for women's conferences, women's professional associations, and Fortune 1000 corporate women's initiatives.

Jo has been developing and implementing coaching programs for emerging women leaders since 1998. Her goal for every engagement is to inspire emerging women leaders to step into the leadership pipeline, and provide them with actionable advice on how to advance. Jo's dynamic delivery, extensive track record, and high ratings make her an in-demand speaker who is frequently invited back for repeat engagements. Her most-requested presentations are Become a Person of Influence, Build Your Brand as an Emerging Leader, and Win at the Game of Office Politics.

Jo has been featured in the Boston Globe, Business Week, ForbesWoman, the San Francisco Chronicle, and the Silicon Valley Business Journal. She was named one of Silicon Valley Business Journal's Women of Influence in 2008.
