

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: Jo Miller
Women's Leadership Coaching
319.365.3200 (office)
650.776.4438 (cell)

Jo Miller's Webinar Reveals How Women Can Develop Workplace Political Savvy for Career Advancement

February 11, 2014 (Cedar Rapids, IA)... Global industry leader, Jo Miller, CEO of Women's Leadership Coaching, Inc., will launch the company's sixth year of its Emerging Women Leaders Webinar Series by unveiling secrets to overcoming one of women's greatest hurdles to workplace advancement, how to navigate office politics. This webinar is the first in a year-long, six-part series blending leadership skills training with advice from guest speakers who are senior-level women leaders. A one-year subscription includes six new webinars per year with access to more than 35 past webinars, all designed for emerging women leaders—early-career and mid-level women in corporations. The webinar series begins with Win at the Game of Office Politics on Tuesday, February 25 at 10 am (PST), 12 noon (CST) and 1 p.m. (EST). Access is available through individual, annual subscriptions of $188 as well as corporate packages of 50 subscriptions. Examples of participating companies include those on the Fortune 100 and 500 lists such as IBM, MasterCard, Medtronic, Nielsen, Siemens, and UBS. Webinar series descriptions, investment and registration details are available at: <http://www.womensleadershipcoaching.com/webinars.htm>

In 2013, more than 1,400 women benefitted from Ms. Miller's training in office politics. That same year, in LinkedIn's survey of 954 professional women, 23% reported that their biggest work frustration was office politics, while research from the Center for Creative Leadership showed that those who are politically savvy have better career prospects, better career trajectories, are seen as more promotable and are less likely to derail (2012). In the Win at the Game of Office Politics webinar Ms. Miller will teach participants how to cultivate the political savvy and influential networks that are key drivers of career advancement. Attendees will learn how to interpret the unwritten 'rules of the game' at work, understand the dynamics of power in their organizations, and build an influential network of advocates.

According to CEO Jo Miller, "the webinars are a scalable, low-cost way for corporate women's initiatives to offer leadership development and networking events. Attendees are encouraged to invite colleagues or their women's network group to watch with them, and take advantage of post-webinar discussion questions that are provided."

-more-

Women's Leadership Coaching, Inc.
2014 Emerging Women Leaders Webinar Series
February 11, 2014

“Companies like Boston Scientific, eBay and Raytheon have made the webinars available to women in multiple locations nationwide, as a way to retain valued women employees and encourage qualified women to enter the leadership pipeline,” said Miller. “Women who participate in the series will gain clarity on how their talents can contribute to the success of the business and walk away with an achievable roadmap for their career advancement.”

Women's Leadership Coaching, Inc., is dedicated to helping emerging women leaders advance into management and leadership positions. Women's Leadership Coaching, Inc. works with organizations that want to develop a pipeline of qualified and engaged women leaders. Its workshops, webinars and coaching programs help women employees gain clarity on how their talents can contribute to their organization's success, encourage them to enter the leadership and management pipeline, and provide them with the tools necessary to take ownership of their career advancement. Learn more about Women's Leadership Coaching including events, articles, videos and more at <http://www.womensleadershipcoaching.com/index.htm>

For a media kit including previous interviews and articles, please visit:
<http://www.womensleadershipcoaching.com/media.htm>, contact the company at 319.365.3200 or email Jo Miller directly at jo@womensleadershipcoaching.com.

###